DETAILED ACTION

Receipt is acknowledged of Applicant's Argument filed on 06/13/2011; and Information Disclosure Statement filed on 05/03/2011.

- Claims 8-9, 12 and 14 are pending in the instant application.
- Claims 8-9 have been previously withdrawn from consideration.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 12 and 14 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over MORISHIMA et al (WO 02/22131 published on 03/21/2002; wherein US 2004/0097592 is used as a translation) in view of KOIDE et al (JP 07-033650; translation provided) are maintained for reasons of record in the previous office action filed on 03/15/2011 and as discussed below.

Response to Arguments

Applicant argues that Morishima et al. do not teach or suggest "polyarylate or a polymer alloy of polyethylene terephthalate and polyarylate.

Art Unit: 1618

The Examiner finds this argument unpersuasive, because KOIDE, the secondary reference, teaches a polymer alloy of polyethylene terephthalate and polyarylate, wherein the reason to combine has been discussed in the previous office action.

Applicant argues that Morishima et al. require an addition of a nonionic surfactant or an antioxidant to inhibit the absorption, while the presently claimed invention involves storage in a container for eye drops made of a polymer alloy of polyethylene terephthalate and polyarylate, Morishima et al. and the presently claimed invention completely differ in the means of achieving the object.

The Examiner finds this argument unpersuasive, because Applicant's claim recites "comprising", which is open-ended language, and does not exclude a nonionic surfactant or an antioxidant.

Applicant argues that KOIDE's container made of a pigment and/or U-polymer, wherein a pigment is an essential component and a U-polymer (polyarylate) is an optional component. According to the examples of Koide et al. (stability test using white florescent light), Examples 1 and 2 in Table 1 shows that when vitamin A palmitate is stored in a resin container comprising polyethylene terephthalate containing a pigment, the concentration (residual ratio) of the Vitamin A are respectively 89% and 99%, and the Vitamin A palmitate is stable. Meanwhile, Comparative Example 4 of Table 2 of Koide et al. shows that when vitamin A palmitate is stored in a resin container comprising polyethylene terephthalate containing a U-polymer (polyarylate) but NOT a pigment, the concentration (residual ratio) of the vitamin A is merely 26%, and the Vitamin A palmitate is not stable at all. In other words, the Comparative Example 4 In

Art Unit: 1618

Table 2 of Koide et al. shows that even if Vitamin A is stored in a resin container comprising polyethylene terephthalate containing a U-polymer (polyarylate), the Vitamin A is not stabilized.

The Examiner finds this argument unpersuasive, because KOIDE explicitly teaches using a container comprising of polyethylene terephthalate, a pigment, and/or a U-polymer, such as polyacrylate (see abstract), wherein Applicant rebut this explicit teaching in the abstract of the KOIDE reference with Tables 1 and 2 disclosed by KOIDE in Japanese without any English translation. The Examiner suggests Applicant to completely translate Tables 1 and 2 into English, if Applicant wishes to use Tables 1 and 2 as a rebuttal to an explicit teaching as disclosed by KOIDE. However, by simply analyzing the Japanese Tables 1 and 2 in KOIDE, the Examiner assumes Example 1 without any U-polymer and pigments has a stability of 0% (see Table 1), wherein containers with polyethylene terephthalate, U-polymer and pigments has a stability of 100% (see Table 2), and wherein containers with polyethylene terephthalate and U-polymer has a stability of 26%. The Examiner finds 26% stability with polyethylene terephthalate and U-polymer, such as polyacrylate, to better than 0%.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

Application/Control Number: 10/566,826 Page 5

Art Unit: 1618

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
